Mid-Summer Meet & Mingle!

Although everybody needs a rest now and then, we’d never want to lose touch.

So we’re all getting together on August 2nd to socialize.

There will be no ‘program,’ but we will show a short, charming presentation, A CWC Road Trip, which was compiled by our State Secretary, Joyce Krieg, for last year’s Jack London Awards luncheon.

Speaking of ‘luncheon,’ this is a pot luck, so bring a dish to show off and share.

Mark it down: August 2nd same Bat-time, same Bat-channel.

(OK. For the Bat-challenged, that’s 1:00, at the Katzenberg.)

Enjoy It While You Can!

This will be the first of a series of gentle reminders that

It’s Time To Renew!

(They will get more abrasive and obnoxious as we near the September 30th cut-off date.)

Save yourself the pain, and renew now!

Renewal Dues are only $45!
Bring your check to the Meet & Mingle, or mail it directly to:
CWC-SFV, 9625 Fullbright Ave.,
Chatsworth, CA 91311

We want to enjoy your company and your writing for another year.

—AUTHORS’ MARKETING OPPORTUNITY—

Extended Deadline: June 25th!
Display your work at the Greater Los Angeles Writers Conference
June 27 - 29.

We cannot sell your books, but we can display your accomplishments at our CWC-SFV table.
(Copies of the display will be available for guests.)
Send promotional book covers, post cards, or business cards to:
Andrea Polk, 16915 Rayen Street, Northridge, CA 91343.
Or email jpegs to: andipolk4@gmail.com.
Questions?
Call Andi: 818-800-5596.

High Desert is once again embarking on a great writers’ conference that you and your members will not want to miss!

SAVE THE DATE: Saturday, November 1, 2014.
The conference will be in Victorville from 9 to 4:30 pm, and promises to feature the best of the best!

It will be well worth the drive no matter where you’re coming from.
Plan a carpool now and join in with us for the fun and creative educational features!
Early Bird prices for CWC members in good standing are only $35 until September 1st.

You can register online NOW.

Of course, seating is limited. (Non-member price until 9/1/14 is $40)
The keynote speaker alone is worth twice that amount.
We have managed to get Christopher Vogler, internationally known teacher and speaker and author of “The Writer’s Journey”, which has sold 180,000 copies!

Come be part of our special event. You’re going to love it!

Come on! Be a writer!

June Speaker Review — Lisa Cron

Weltanschauung… — Ray Malus

The word is German. We really don’t have its equal in English. ‘Worldview’ is as close as we come, but it’s an anemic substitute.

Imagine yourself standing on a mountain, looking at existence: broad, narrow, clear, foggy, distant, near — the entire knowable Universe. Now choose a different mountain. Same existence, different weltanschauung. (And, really, isn’t that the essence of ‘art’?)

Lisa Cron takes you to a new mountain — and the view is spectacular.

That mountain is ‘Story.’
Not ‘a story.’
Not ‘the story.’
Simply ‘Story.’

For her, ‘Story’ is a principle of existence, an abstract formula, a process — and as necessary to human survival and fulfillment as food and air.

Now, this is pretty heady stuff (pun intended) — more suited to endless late hours in a coffee shop or alehouse — and cramming it into one hour in a sun-lit room is a herculean task.

Cron manages this by dispensing highly concentrated information at the speed of a Japanese Bullet Train, nimbly leaping from discipline to discipline (writing, sociology, anatomy, philosophy, medicine …) as she sets forth her theses and substantiates them.

It’s a dazzling display — kind of like Luke Skywalker and Darth Vader’s climactic light-saber duel — and, if you listen closely, it all makes wonderful, elegant sense. (However, if you try to take notes, you will soon be overwhelmed.

My pages are filled with incomplete words, where I tried to dash on to her next thought.) This is because Cron must compress the equivalent of a major doctoral thesis into an hour. (Eventually, I gave up taking notes, and just reveled in the presentation, so I may have some of this wrong. My apologies in advance.)

Cron says that, as an editor, she was constantly frustrated by the number of submissions she had to reject — all because they had no story. She asked herself why this was.

She concluded that the ability to construct and tell a story is an innate one that’s so ingrained in those that have it, that when justifying their success, they overlook it. Instead, they seek the explanation in terms of ‘technique’ or vocabulary. The same is true, she says, of Creative Writing teachers. They teach ‘writing.’ But, Cron declares, ‘Writing’ is the handmaid of ‘Story.’” (At this point, ‘Story’ took on the unconscious, ‘unconscious attachment.’ Cron says that most decisions are actually made, not by the ‘conscious’ mind (which is relatively slow), but by the ‘cognitive unconscious,’ which is very fast, and is the target of Story.

She continues that mere facts are meaningless; there must be a narrative that ties them together and makes them relevant to the reader. MRI scans have confirmed that, as we read a story, the brain reacts very much as if we were experiencing the story’s events ourselves.

Finally, Story provokes emotions. Not what Cron calls the ‘Big Box’ emotions (‘Happiness,’ ‘Grief,’ etc.), but feelings. Feelings are how we make sense of everything, and are the subjective representations of chemical reactions in the brain. These emotions are how we make decisions. She asserts, “All choice is emotional.”

So what is a ‘Story’?
Cron says Story is “… how what happens in pursuit of a goal changes the misbelief of the protagonist.”

All three are necessary: goal, misbelief, change. (My only quibble: Here, I actually think she confines herself too much.)

As an example, she uses the film, “Die Hard.” (This also happens to be a good example of the distinction Cron draws between ‘plot’ and ‘Story.’)

The plot is about a New York City cop, who goes to Los Angeles on vacation, gets trapped in a hostage situation, kills a lot of bad guys, blows up a high-rise, and rescues the hostages — among them, his wife.

The Story is about the reasons his marriage is failing, what he learns during the action, and how he changes enough for the marriage to succeed.

This Story has appeal to both men — who can feel less compelled to play ‘masculine’ social roles, and women — who see that men can be less aggressive and more nurturing. It is this broad appeal that makes the story a success.

After a (very) brief Q and A, Cron closed with advice: When you write, be specific! “We make sense of the world based on experience, and that is specific.”

As I reread this review it seems a very inadequate summary of the presentation. You really have to experience the dazzling cataract of facts and conclusions for yourself. One can hope Cron’s book, Wired For Story (go to: http://wiredforstory.com/) contains most of it, but the person is a large part of the presentation.

After the program, I asked Lisa Cron, “What are you?”
Fortunately, she understood I was asking, “Professionally, what do you call yourself?”
She answered, “I’m not quite sure. Lately, I’ve been calling myself a ‘Story Coach.’”
She’s that and much more. Lisa Cron is a thinker — and there aren’t nearly enough of them!

❖
New Slate of Officers for 2014
Compiled by Linda Brown (Berkeley Branch)

President David George, Mt. Diablo, became a dual member of the Mt. Diablo and Berkeley branches in 2004. In 2009, Mt. Diablo awarded him lifetime member status. Dave has held a number of board-level positions at both branches as well as the Central Board. Dave’s writing career includes short stories, poems, and nonfiction. He explores the ironies found during his 30-year high-tech business career and his encounters with the wildlife of rural California. He has won writing awards, most recently First Place in the CWC-San Francisco/Peninsula’s Jack London Annual Writing Contest. He is currently writing a novel based on his Irish ancestral roots and an anthology of modern fables about the natural world.

Vice-President Margie Yee Webb, Sacramento, is author/photographer of Cat Mulan’s Mindful Musings: Insight and Inspiration for a Wonderful Life and Producer of FEMME: Women Healing the World. She has served as the CWC-CB’s Vice President since July 2012 and has also served as the CB’s Member At-Large. Margie is the CWC Sacramento Branch President. In 2011 the Sacramento branch recognized her ongoing contributions with their branch’s Jack London Award for service. She enjoys connecting with CWC representatives from all branches to share successes and learn from each other. She also belongs to the Cat Writers’ Association and the Women’s National Book Association, San Francisco Chapter.

Secretary Joyce Krieg, Central Coast, is the author of the Shauna J. Bogart Talk Radio Mystery Series: Murder Off Mike, Slip Cue, and Riding Gain, (St. Martin’s Minotaur). She joined the CWC in 2004 and currently leads CWC-NorCal. Joyce designed the new CWC banner and brochure. A former newspaper reporter, television announcer, radio reporter and newscaster, Joyce became promotion director for Sacramento’s KFBK News/Talk 1530. This served her well when she started to write about a crime-fighting, mystery-solving talk-radio host. She currently lives in Pacific Grove, where she is a member of the Central Coast branch and is chief-of-staff to her cat, Topaz.

Treasurer Sharon Svitak, Tri-Valley Writers, has been a CWC member since 2009. She writes romance and is a member of the Romance Writers of America. Her published works include Letters to Ethan, Joe’s Story; A Book of Memories (Chicken Soup for the Soul: Grieving and Recovery); and Medical Benefits (Voices of the Valley – Encore). Sharon has held three positions at her branch and also serves as the CB’s Membership Chair, producing statewide membership reports.

Member-At-Large Ray Malus, San Fernando Valley Branch, joined the CWC in 2009. He writes fiction, poetry, and essays, and has published Ashes In Yonkers, and Stories You’d Give A Shit About—If I Was Famous. Ray has served as branch webmaster and newsletter editor. Ray also designed and administers the Member Record Management System (MRMS), an all-electronic system which saves volunteers lots of time and makes it easy to share contact information within the branches.

He serves on the CWC-CB because he believes that our greatest strength lies in our statewide unity.

PR Director Donna McCrohan Rosenithal, East Sierra, has written for newspapers throughout California and several magazines, including Redbook, Cosmopolitan, and Desert Companion. She’s authored over a dozen books on popular culture, including The Honeymooners Companion: The Kramdens. When she moved from New York, she transitioned to travel writing. She has appeared on A&E Biography and Oprah, and she has spoken at the Smithsonian Institution and the Museum of Television and Radio. Donna joined the East Sierra Branch CWC in 1998 where she has been been president, secretary, and program chair. At regional level, she chairs CWC-South (www.socalwritersshowcase.com). At the CWC state level, she serves as a representative on the Central Board. From 2009 to 2010, she oversaw the CWC Centennial.

Literary Review Editor Dave LaRoche, South Bay, has published many short stories and has just finished the first draft of a novel. Dave has represented the South Bay Branch at the Club’s Central Board for six years and has spearheaded several changes, including using the Internet to conduct official business, which has greatly reduced costs. He currently serves as the CB’s Standards and Policy Chair in addition to editing the annual CWC Literary Review. Until January, he administered the CB’s electronic discussion forum. Dave founded and chaired NorCal, a regional association bent on furthering communication and activities among the twelve northern branches. Dave is VP of South Bay and has previously served as branch president and the editor of WritersTalk, the South Bay newsletter. Dave holds the CWC responsible for his writing enthusiasm and success, and a good cigar for his healthy longevity.
